"Why You Should Include Humor in Your Writing, Even if You Don't Write Comedy. "

Humor is a multi-tasking powerhouse in your writing. A joke can show characterization, reveal relationships, shift the tension of your plot, deliver a painful truth in an easy-to-swallow way, and even endear you to readers. And what writer doesn't want to be endeared by their readers?

"What I've Learned as an Indie Author"

In this one-hour presentation KJ Waters will share what she has learned as an Indie author including her secret recipe to becoming an Amazon best-selling author, how she grew her author platform to 50,000 followers, and how to use an integrated social media strategy and author brand to market her work.

THPW members attend FREE. Meetings are open to the public, and guests are welcome for a $10 fee.

Books, Books, and More Books!

Two exciting new opportunities to get more involved at THPW!

#1

We are fundraising for THPW's upcoming Centennial Celebration.

Bring new or nearly new items related to writing such as notebooks, pens, coffee mugs, books on story craft, or writer's inspirations - anything a writer might be interested in - to the meeting and give them to a board member for our raffle.

Don't forget to buy your tickets!

Bring gently used fiction, non-fiction, or used craft books, magazines on writing, anything that you would like to recycle. Leave One. Take One.

Free exchange of items.

Donna Rosson, Vice President in charge of fundraising, needs your help. If you'd like to serve on the Fundraising Committee, or if you have any ideas to raise funds which will go towards our upcoming

The Rights associated with your Book.

One of my nonfiction books gained the attention of a small press, and a standard publishing contract arrived in my inbox. "Excited" hardly describes the moment you realize somebody wants your work. We all dream about the opportunity for our words to soar to new places. It's very exciting. Below are listed the rights that you, as the creator of "The Work", will be giving up under the industry standard contract for a 10% royalty.

Keep in mind that each and every one of these rights listed below can be negotiated separately. This is exact verbatim from a standard publishing contract with some of the legal ease edited out for easier reading.

1. Rights Granted. The author hereby grants, transfers, and assigns to the Publisher for the full term of copyright the exclusive right to publish the Work in hardback and paperback editions and to sell throughout the world in all languages. ...all electronic rights to the Work, with exclusive authority to license said rights throughout the world in all languages. ...subsidiary rights as specified in paragraph 9.

Paragraph 9. The Author hereby grants, transfers and assigns to the Publisher for the full term of copyright the exclusive right to license, sell, or otherwise dispose of the following rights in the Work in all languages and throughout the world: publication or sale by book clubs; reprint rights; foreign rights; translation rights...; publication in anthologies, compilations, digests, condensations; serial rights ...; dramatic, motion picture, multimedia and televisions rights; broadcast for radio; recordings; electronic rights ...e-books, Kindle, Nook and other ...; audio, mechanical, and visual reproduction; computer programs; microprint, microfiche, and microfilm editions; syndication rights; permission rights (quotations, excerpts, illustrations, etc.); merchandising rights and in any media now known or hereafter created; and otherwise utilize the Work and material based on the Work.

Many publishers include rights that they may never exploit, and perhaps never intend to. A smaller press, for example, may never have the resources to sell your book in multiple languages yet they want to cover all possibilities just in case. The smarter author has a literary agent or intellectual property attorney advise on contract negotiations.

There is another option. Keep ALL of your rights, be your own boss, set your own deadlines, and publish as an Indie Author. We'll have a panel at the July Meeting to discuss the step-by-step process including the best and the worst when you decide to take charge of your work and become an Independent Author. Save The Date: July 21st. Natalie

Critique Session Guidelines

If announced and if there are interested participants, critique sessions may follow the regularly scheduled meetings. To participate in the critique session, you do not need to have a piece to be critiqued. The sessions begin at 1:30 PM. and, depending on the number of those who have a story or a poem needing to be critiqued, can last up to a couple of hours. We suggest that your material not exceed approximately 750 to 1,000 words. Please bring at about five copies of your story or poem. If possible, it is helpful if you bring a short synopsis of your story so those critiquing have some background. We ask that you format your manuscript as follows:

- 1. Use white 8.5 by 11-inch paper.
- 2. Double space using either Times New Roman 12 or similar font.
- 3. In the header, give your last name, a slash (/), and a short title on the left and the page number on the right (at the top of each page).
- 4. Use one-inch margins.
- 5. Use one side of the paper only.
- 6. If possible, use line numbering.
- 7. Note: Your synopsis may be single-spaced.

Each person, in turn, will read 1,000 words or less (15 to 20 minutes) or the author will read their own writing, based on preference; then, the group facilitator will ask for discussion from the group. While each person is reading, we urge all other participants to offer written comments on the manuscript. All copies will be returned to each author.

The goal of every critique is: "How can we make it better."

Meetings are held on the third Saturday in odd-numbered months: January, March, May, July, September, and November.

Meetings are open to the public and everyone is welcome. There is no fee for members of Texas High Plains Writers to attend our regular bi-monthly meetings. A $10 fee may apply to nonmembers.

Unless otherwise specified, 2017 meeting location is: Oasis Church Our meetings/programs follow this schedule:
